TEACHING & LEARNING, RESEARCH & KNOWLEDGE EXCHANGE

Message from the
LIBRARIAN

The new academic year brings great news to the Libraries.

On 19 September 2019, we acquired the FormAsia Books (<http://www.formasiabooks.com/>) collection. Having been incorporated in Hong Kong in 1975, the goal of FormAsia Books was to utilise superb photography and eloquent essays to document Asian life for a Western readership, with particular emphasis on Hong Kong.

FormAsia Books Managing Director Frank Fischbeck's photographs have won him the Overseas Press Club of America citation for his work in China where he covered the Cultural Revolution and the 'Ping Pong' diplomacy prior to President Nixon's arrival in Beijing. He has continued to record and preserve Asia's immense diversity in a range of publications after settling in Hong Kong in the 1970s.

The FormAsia collection Exhibition at the Exhibition area, Ingenium,
Main Library, HKU

The collection consists of a number of discrete sub-collections that comprise:

- 1. Albumen/Silver/Gelatin Original Photographs (1,000)
— Silver gelatin prints became the dominant photographic process from the 1880s until the 1960s;
- 2. Rare Albumen Prints (125)
— The significance of an albumen print is that it was the first commercial method of producing a photograph from 1855 to the turn of the 20th century. Few have survived, as they tend to be fragile and suffer from exposure to light;
- 3. Historic Panorama Prints (20)
— Panorama prints are rare. FormAsia invested in out-of-the-ordinary panoramas from a variety of sources including the four prominent HK galleries specialising in historic photographs;
- 4. The Core Black & White Collection: 8,000 Photographs with Original Negatives
— The entire Archive has proved a resource in demand with publishers, museums, universities, and government agencies;
- 5. The Core Colour Collection: 15,000 Transparencies
— The Colour Collection contains over 15,000 transparencies chronicling not only the evolution of Hong Kong from an entrepôt port to a leading world financial centre, but also the broader span of Asia's history, arts and architecture;
- 6. High-Resolution Digital Files (5,000)
— High-resolution digital files form a vital part of the collection. Of the approximately 25,000 photographs comprising the overall Archive, over 5,000 images have already been digitized. This is an enormous cost-saving element, facilitating the building blocks for the print media and online access.

Additionally Mr Fischbeck has donated 3 antique mahogany brass folding cameras as well as a set of FormAsia Books publications.

This impossible to replicate visual record is defined by Dr Peter Cunich, HKU Associate Professor of History, as “the finest collection of Hong Kong historical photographs still in private hands”.

We intend to incorporate the images, wherever possible, into our existing Hong Kong Image Database (<https://digitalrepository.lib.hku.hk/collection/s4655j58z/>) or elsewhere as appropriate. Additionally a series of exhibitions and talks centred on the collection will be held in the coming months.

The acquisition of the collection has been made possible through a series of very generous donations from benefactors eager to see the collection remain in Hong Kong, intact and based at HKU. We are deeply indebted to the following for their unprecedented support:

- WYNG Foundation
- Kadoorie Charitable Foundation
- The Swire Group Charitable Trust
- Ng Teng Fong Charitable Foundation Limited
- Simon K Y Lee Foundation Ltd.

Please join me in thanking our donors and Mr Fischbeck for making this unique collection available at HKU for the entire world.

Donation by Professor To Cho-ye

Fung Ping Shan Library received a unique donation from our Faculty of Arts alumna Madam To Tit Ming (杜秩明), viz. a scroll rubbing of the stone stele engraved with the eulogy to Confucius written by Emperor Kangxi in 1686 (康熙御製孔子贊碑長軸). Her brother Professor To Cho-ye (杜祖貽) acquired the scroll from the classical/rare book section of the Commercial Press (商務印書館文物及古籍部 - 新風閣) in 1969 as a gift on her graduation. The original stele can be found at the Beijing Imperial Academy (北京國子監).

The scroll was presented to the Libraries in April by Professor To when he visited the Library. In May, Professor To also donated his collection of Chinese calligraphy exemplars (法帖) and a calligraphy scroll by Mr Tse Ka Po (謝家寶), a local philanthropist, calligraphist, painter and photographer in 1930s. The Library is very grateful for the generosity of Madam and Professor To.

Student Design Competition

After the Main Library opened its new 2/F entrance in 2016 and launched the Ingenium in 2019, it was time to reinvigorate the New Arrivals Display on the second floor. The New Arrivals Display showcases new additions to the Library collection every Wednesday.

To help engage the creativity and perspective of our Library users, we launched a student design competition.

Several students applied their design talent to the challenge and proposed creative solutions for the New Arrivals Display. A panel of judges including our University Librarian, Deputy University Librarian, and representatives from the Architecture Faculty and the Estates Office, awarded Ms Karen Ho Ka Wing (HKU Master of Architecture) as the winner. Karen's design will be realized, created, and installed in the Main Library. Look out for the revamped New Arrivals Display soon!

CATALOGUING

From user to contributor: HKUL joins Membership in the Name Authority Cooperative Program (NACO)

The University of Hong Kong Libraries (HKUL) follows international standards in performing cataloguing work. Cataloguing includes bibliographic description, subject analysis, classification and authority control. Authority control is the practice of creating and maintaining controlled headings for bibliographic materials in the library catalogue. These controlled headings help to disambiguate names of persons, corporate bodies or title of works and expressions. An end user can, therefore, perform a more precise search through the collocations of works by the same author.

HKUL has been employing the Library of Congress Name Authority File (LCNames) to conduct name authority control for decades. In late 2018, HKUL and six other JULAC libraries decided to take a step forward and applied for membership to the Name Authority Cooperative Program (NACO) with the intention to go beyond the role of a user to being a contributor. The Name Authority Cooperative Program (NACO) is part of the Program for Cooperative Cataloging (PCC). Through this program, members contribute authority records to LCNames.

To gain the status of an independent contributor, members have to complete a 3-week online training workshop followed by a satisfactory performance review. The training began in May and the review phase in June. On 16 August, the reviewer, without hesitation, recommended granting independence status to HKUL. The status was confirmed on 5 September by the NACO coordinator, commending us for having achieved “such a momentous stage of independence so quickly!”

The independence status for contributing authority records to LCNames is a milestone for HKUL in handling authority control and are ready to make more contributions to the library world.

In collaboration with HKU's Lung Fu Shan Environmental Education Centre, the Libraries was pleased to host the exhibition The Pulse of Nature - Lung Fu Shan from 18 June – 8 August 2019 at the 2/F Exhibition Area, Main Library.

How to 'exhaustively explore' our environments? How to truly engage in, and sense the pulse of nature around us? The exhibition brought visitors into HKU's Mid-Levels West backyard through a curated collection of sculptures, photographs, video recordings, drawings, and short stories. Drawing from the diverse perspectives of artists, academics and creatives, the exhibition encouraged exploration of the world around us, in search of a way to hear all around us... the pulse of nature.

《世紀的童話》紀念展覽 (Madame Huang Exhibition and talk) 16 - 30 August, 2019

The Libraries were pleased to host the Madame Huang Qingyun (黃慶雲) and The University of Hong Kong in History exhibition and book talk from the 16 – 30 August 2019, Exhibition Area and Multi-purpose area, 2/F, Main Library.

The exhibition and talk shared a general overview on how The University of Hong Kong played an important academic role on several famous scholars who taught at HKU, and how they significantly inspired and influenced Huang Qingyun (黃慶雲), with regard to her development as a pioneer of children's literature in Hong Kong.

Between 1938 and 1939, after the fall of Guangzhou during the anti-Japanese War (1938), Huang Qingyun (黃慶雲) continued her studies at HKU. The two semesters she spent were critical to her later emergence as a legend in the world of children's literature. She published the only Chinese-language children's magazine in China and Hong Kong during World War II, and later served as Vice President of the Guangdong Writers Association. She received the Best Artist Award from the Hong Kong Arts Development Council in 2009.

About the book

The book Design DNA of Mark I: Hong Kong's Public Housing Prototype is written and crafted like a detective story, using in-depth archival research to identify possible causal factors that contributed to the design of the Mark I resettlement blocks. It reveals intriguing findings in the architectural origins of the Mark I Block which was a fusion of the British socio-cultural concept of low-income housing and traditional living preferences in Hong Kong. The book includes the personal interview story of the chief architect of the Mark I Block of Hong Kong public housing. It is well-researched and well-illustrated with more than 100 photos, architectural drawings and sketches. Bilingual in English and Chinese, the book aims to be informative and educational, but at the same time, avoids using architectural jargon and technical terminology.
