

Elsevier's Presentation by Ms Airani Ramli on 30 April 2011

Topic: Library's role in fostering research collaborations in academia - going beyond content provision

Airani Ramli <A.Ramli@elsevier.com>

Airani joined Elsevier as its Asia Pacific SciVal consultant on 1st July 2010. She is responsible for strategic engagements with influential stakeholders of key accounts to understand customer challenges, recommend innovative solutions based on key strategic priorities identified by the customers and subsequently provide consultative services to facilitate customers achieve the same.

Airani read biological science and business administration at the National University of Singapore and has strong research background in S&T and equity investments. Airani comes with extensive experience in academic and government sectors, having held progressive policy positions at the Agency for Science, Technology and Research of Singapore (ASTAR) and at the National University Industry Liaison Office.